Down to Death

The Louisville and Jeffersonville Bridge Goes Down with a Crash.

MORE THAN A SCORE OF LIVES ARE LOST WHILE MANY OTHERS ARE SERIOUSLY INJURED.

AN APPALLING DISASTER.

The High Winds, Assisted by the Merciless Waves Do the Terrible Work.

Nine Dead Bodies are Recovered and Eighteen Others Supposed to Be Buried Beneath the Ruins.

GREAT FINANCIAL LOSS.

The culminating disaster on the ill-fated Louisville and Jeffersonville bridge occurred at ten minutes past 10 o'clock a. m., last Friday, the 16th inst. At that time the fourth span of the structure gave way and fell into the river. In its descent it carried with it more than a score of workmen down to their death beneath the waves of the dark and dangerous Ohio, while many others are injured and missing.

The accident is one of the most horrible that ever occurred in this section, and many are the hearts that are rendered and the tears that are shed, because of the great disaster. There was but a moment's warning and those that escaped going down with the mass of timber and iron, saved themselves by rushing to the piers. After the bridge had fallen for hundreds of feet on either side of them, eighteen men were left standing huddled together in mid-air, one hundred and ten feet above the water, on the top of one of those great stone structures. Those were rescued by a rope ladder, thrown them from a steamboat.

THE ACCIDENT.

The foreman, when beginning work on the morning of the fatal day, noticed that the high winds of the night before had worked the "traveler" loose and he ordered his men to pull it back into its place. The "traveler" was a tall frame structure, made of heavy timbers. It was 104 feet high, 80 feet long and 20 feet wide. It ran on a track made for it and was moved forward as the work progressed. Four or five engines were on the "traveler" and were used in holding heavy iron beams to their places.

The wind was still blowing at the rate of thirty miles an hour and the great "traveler" swung back and forth from its force. Every time it would lean up the river its great weight would push the piles of the false work, on which it rested, down the river. The workmen noticed this and realized their danger, consequently they worked with more care than usual and some of them became so frightened that they quit work and started for the Kentucky shore.

The efforts of the men could not move the "traveler" back into its position, but on the contrary every swing of the mighty structure was moving it farther out, till at last it slipped off the piles that were supporting it. It came down with a terrible crash, carrying with it a mass of large timbers, iron beams and struggling humanity.

About fifty men were on and around the "traveler" at the time the crash came. The first warning they had was the cracking of a few heavy timbers and almost at the same instant they felt the false work of the bridge sinking from under them. Those that were not at work among the frame works of the "traveler" made a run for the piers.

The "traveler" was near the northern or Indiana end of the span and by night the connection would have been made. The span was 500 feet long, and those men were seen clinging up at quite a steep angle. Eighteen men had reached the pier and the nineteenth fell with his hands touching the cold stones when the frame work separated from the pier and he went down with it, sinking beneath the waves to his death. Four men reached the northern pier, and one of them got entangled in a rope and was dragged down to his death.

DOWN IN THE RIVER.

The scene was a most appalling one. Large timbers, broken and splintered, huge iron rods and beams, bent and twisted into a thousand shapes, steamed together hissing and sputtering, lay together in one confused mass, while the wild waves of the Ohio, set in motion by the high winds were dashing against and over the whole. In the debris, and rising and falling with the waves, were seen many of the unfortunate workmen, with broken arms and legs and bruised heads and bodies, struggling for their lives, while those who from fright or disability, clung to the iron rods or timbers, went down to rise no more except in death.

THE RESCUE.

The terrible disaster was witnessed from both shores, the sound of the crash was heard for many squares, the news spread rapidly to other districts and soon the levees were crowded by thousands of anxious spectators. Lifeboats, skiffs and steamboats were quickly manned and pulled rapidly to the scene of destruction, that as many lives might be saved as possible.

As the dead and the dying, the maimed and the wounded were brought ashore many touching scenes occurred. Wives were there anxiously enquiring for missing husbands, mothers and fathers inquiring for sons, sisters looking for brothers, and weeping children asking if papa was killed. Occasionally one of the missing would turn up alive and well and be covered with embraces and tears of joy, while again loving hearts would be rendered as a familiar form would be brought out, maimed for life or cold in death.

THE DEAD.

The following were taken out dead or injured on the day of the disaster: Frank D. Burdett, Franklin, Ill.; C. W. Cook, Mantua Station, O.; James Courtney, Clinton, Ill.; L. G. Carlock, Alton, Ill.

Restored to his family.

Who say the clouds of life have not a silver lining? Look at little 4 year old Grover Reynolds, Watson, Ill. His father, Daniel W. Reynolds, after describing the little sufferer's long illness, continued: "Finally a grand was forced into the urethra and remained there, producing blood poisoning and dropsical effusions. He was treated by a couple of eminent physicians. They made incisions to let the water out and finally properly advised an operation, but could not find the stone. It was so weak death would likely result. I refused and began giving him Dr. Fenger's Kidney and Bladder Cure. Before one bottle had been entirely taken the stone had become so dissolved by the remedy that it passed out of itself and the child is well and sound today." This shows its power in dissolving stones. It is equally powerful for good in all kidney diseases. Money returned if satisfaction not given. Take a bottle home to-day.

Frank Miller, Buffalo, N. Y.; Charles Murphy, Chicago.

THE INJURED.

Geo. W. Brown, Irvington, Ky., arm broken; two paces; Thomas M. Calloway, Louisville, ankle sprained and several ribs broken; Harry O. Lee, New Albany, head cut; B. F. Hall, Bristol, Tenn., bruised; Edward Hilderbrand, Scott's Post-office, Pa., ribs broken and hurt internally.

THE MISSING.

J. Albin, Russell L. Durlinger, River ton, Va.; G. H. Henkle, Dauphin, Pa.; J. Holdner, Patrick Kelly, St. Louis; J. Krizan, George Lilly, J. F. Owens, H. Plake, New Albany; F. Sheridan, Frank Simmons, Jacksonville, Ala.; A. Solen, M. Solen, J. L. Wilson.

All those given as missing are supposed to be in the river buried beneath the debris.

ANOTHER CHASE.

As the work of clearing the debris and searching for the dead was progressing on Friday night about 8:30 o'clock another terrible crash was heard. The third span of the bridge had given way and dropped in the river. There was no one on this span at the time, but the financial loss was much more than that caused by the morning disaster. The total loss to the company will approximate $150,000. The engineers attribute the cause of both disasters to the high winds that were prevailing at the time, though there are many different opinions entertained by the people.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES.

There were many miraculous escapes and thrilling experiences, and as a specimen we will give that of George W. Brown, of Irvington this county. He was one of the boys on the ill-fated structure and went down with the first boat. He tells his experience in his own language: "The first I knew was a cry to run for the pier, but before I could turn I felt the bridge settling beneath my feet. I struggled to get up but could not. For an instant I seemed to stand still. Then there was a rush and I seemed to be traveling like a fish through the air. It seemed at least a minute before I was hurled into the water. I went down, it seemed, almost to the bottom of the river. When I struggled to the top I found that my arm was broken. I succeeded in clinging to a timber until taken off. The feeling as I was plunging through the air was one that I never want to experience again."

"While I was clinging to the timber two men came up near me, and after struggling an instant sank out of sight. I saw several others struggling in the water who sank out of sight before help reached us. In my weakened condition, and with my broken arm, I could do nothing to help them."

Mr. Brown is a brother-in-law of Mr. F. F. Hagood, bridge superintendent of the Louisville, St. Louis & Texas railroad.

Edward Hohen, Chicago, broken thigh and leg broken.

Samuel Parks, Louisville, both arms broken and hurt internally.

Harry D. Uugh, Mercer, Pa., both arms broken, back broken and internally injured.

For Parents to Read.

"Whatever you wish your child to be, be in your soul. If you wish it to be happy, sober, truthful, affectionate, honest and godly, be your self all these things. Children are such imitative beings. They often act unconsciously as mirrors to older people. We see in them our fault projected again and again, and we have heart, for we know what battle life is fought. We see, too, in happier moments, our virtues and perhaps our greatest faults. Our children are our best teachers. We want them to be a great deal more healthy and a great deal more godly, happier and even more affectionate than we are. We want them to be a great deal more honest and truthful than their parents. We have spent twenty-five or thirty years in acquiring these virtues, and I think the demands we make upon the little men and women who have just begun the journey of life is somewhat out of all proportion to their few years. Indeed I have seen parents exact an amount of self control and an understanding of the world from their children which I think they would find it difficult to practice themselves."

"Virtue is not the growth of a day, but the outcome of years of discipline and experience. And to teach goodness is to teach the child to be a better person. It is not the growth of a day, but the outcome of years of discipline and experience. And to teach goodness is to teach the child to be a better person."

BRECKENRIDGE NEWS.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1893.

STEPHENSPORT.

Those on the sick list are slowly improving.

Mr. Murray Farr has been quite sick for some time.

Mr. Floyd R. E. Miller went to Cloverport Saturday.

Dr. White went to Tobinsport Thursday to spend a few days with his parents.

Mrs. Flora McDonald, of Kansas, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dot Stiles.

Mr. Clark, of Cannelton, has been in town for some time having some stage barges loaded.

Messrs. Kirby and Billy Blain write from Florida that they are well pleased with their new home.

Our town is looking up in spite of the ill times, as we now can boast of two public wells and another in progress.

R. A. Shellenham spent several days in Louisville last week conversing with Santa Claus and will be ready in a few days for Christmas opening and the little folks.

Miss Mary Fricker spent last Wednesday in town the guest of Mrs. Boyd McKaughan leaving next day for her home at Falcon, accompanied by Mr. Jak. G. McKaughan and Mrs. Alder.

We hear from Norton's Infirmary that Miss Grace McCoy after her month's probation has been accepted as nurse, and is delighted with her work.

Also Miss Sallie Davis, another one of our girls, is spoken of as being the best nurse in the Infirmary.

We understand there was a young man in our midst a few days ago who contemplated starting a pottery here, and wanted a sample of our brick clay, but was refused the idea. Now some people stand mightily in their own light, so thinks the writer.

THEY SAY

That we are to have a new dry goods store soon.

That J. D. Babbage, of Cloverport, was in town Friday.

That Mr. and Mrs. Ed Crawford are at the South Hotel.

That Brother & Sister's business is progressing nicely. Dr. J. F. Napper is clerking for them.

That Miss Daisy Watlington, of Union Star, was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Clara Watlington, last week.

That Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Ferry, of Cloverport, spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Miller, here, and with relatives at Louisville.

From another correspondent.

Items are very scarce.

Miss Maud Gilbert is on the sick list.

Mrs. Rachel B. Lay spent a few days in Brandenburg last week.

Mr. C. M. McElhannon, of Union Star, was in our midst Sunday.

Mr. George Janson was the guest of Miss George Hawkins Sunday.

Mrs. E. A. Smith returned from a pleasant visit to relatives in Louisville last week.

The clever drummer, Ed Crawford, of New Albany, was in our midst for a day or so last week.

Our floating tabernacle has left us going south. We wish them a long and prosperous journey.

Mr. Charles Watlington is going to open a new store just above the drug store, January 1st, 1894.

Mr. Gathrie, the clever clerk for P. C. Braheiser, returned to his home at Owensboro Saturday night.

Mr. Joe English, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. English, is very low at this writing. We hope he will soon recover.

Mr. O. C. Shellenham is crossing the Ohio in a skiff now instead of wading. We have very much to see him going at all.

From another correspondent.

Peter Hilly is just recovering from a protracted illness of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Geo. Berkley went to Louisville on Sunday last to be absent several days.

Mrs. James Crawford, of Louisville, spent several days last week at her old home here.

Rev. Ashburn, of the Western Recorder, of Louisville, filled the pulpit at the Methodist church on Monday evening of last week.

Mrs. Cyndia Smith has returned from Louisville after a pleasant visit to relatives and an inspection of the beautiful holiday goods now on display.

Mr. C. W. Moseley, of the B. and I. Trust Co., Louisville, will spend the holidays with his parents here. He has recently been made manager of agents of his company.

Mr. Mike Blain has an orange orchard near Lakeland, Florida, and has sent his son, Kirby and Will, on to make all things ready for himself and wife, who will follow them sometime during the present month.

Our school conducted by Frodo Cunningham and Adkins is moving on smoothly without any kind of disturbance. We venture to say you cannot find in any public school harder working boys and girls than in our school here. Under such a teacher as we have, we can expect nothing else but a prosperous school! Such we have, and our people are proud of it.

The Rev. C. F. Hatfield, of the Methodist church, assisted by Rev. Robert Cox, has just closed a two-weeks meeting. No additions to the church, but we believe much good has been done, namely, in strengthening the church members and bringing about a warmer feeling among the brotherhood. We trust the truths that were so forcibly uttered may like good seed have taken root in the hearts of sinners and yet bring forth meet for the Master's use. The church is delighted with their new pastor and his family and feel much encouraged with the outlook for a prosperous and happy year.

One Lady Says

I have been troubled for years with a hacking cough. I have had many doctors and tried fifty cough cures. I grew worse all the time. I tried Jark's Cough Syrup and found immediate relief. It kept the action of the disease and I know it is the best cough remedy on the market. Roler any sufferer to Mrs. W. J. Fahy, Le Roy, N. Y. A. Fisher, druggist.

Tobinsport.

Weather blue.

Wind from the orchard.

Alex. Ahl is a Simpson (pure) Democrat from the way he talks now a days.

The meeting at the Methodist church still continues with unabating interest.

We saw a wedding way down at Troy about six weeks ago, and Tom Hawkins still claims since.

On the sick list, Robt. Tolson, Mrs. Alice Taylor, Mrs. Julia Lousch and a little six year old boy of Cass Whitehead.

Oh, that glorious Christmas tree. The little folks can hardly wait for the time to come. Just be patient, Christmas has never failed to come yet and it will not fail this time.

There was but about two of our farmers that attended the Institute at Rome last week. This shows how much farmers as a rule appreciate a free gift. The expenses are paid by the state and we will not come to the light. We want to still stay in the old ruts of our fathers.

CLIFTON MILLS.

H. C. Haddock, E. J. Beuchamp and Dr. Parker attended court at Harlanburg Monday.

Mr. Taylor Handy and wife, of Bowlingville, were visiting relatives near here last week.

It appears that the Raymond and Loshing correspondents, are "out" it. Come again, more fools more fan.

There will be a spelling match at the Clifton school house on Thursday night. All neighboring schools are invited.

Some candidates for the postmistries relieved E. H. Parr of fifty pounds of good sweet bacon one night last week.

I am always delighted to read the Wolf Creek letter. I see so many names that are familiar to me. It brings back recollections of childhood scenes in my former home. Come again, Wolf Creek.

Let every land owner inform himself fully in regard to the recent bill against hunters trespassing and have it enforced in every instance, when violated. And if the fox-hunters and thimble-headed duels that run through people's pastures shooting their stock, and, unfortunately, shooting each other, don't like it, they can change their range. We know men who claim they are not able to feed any dogs this season on account of scarcity of corn.

Yet the same men can feed three or four wolf-dogs. The dogs are necessities, you know.

The year '93 is drawing to a close and while the efforts of the people have not been crowned with success, yet they have much for which they should be thankful. They have a sufficiency to put them through the winter and something for the poor, and they have gained with good health. It seems now that there will be but few vacant chairs toadden their Christmas greeting. No deaths having occurred within a radius of four miles of Clifton Mills for five months and the mortality rate for even a larger radius for a year past is not over five. Verily let us be thankful.
